

SINGAPORE

EXTENSION TO INDOCHINA TRIP

NOVEMBER 10 - 14, 2007

This three day, three night extension is an incredible finish to an already fantastic trip. Singapore is an unbelievably vibrant city, with the most ethnic diversity of any place on earth. Geographically positioned as a hub to Indonesia, Malaysia, Asia and India, it is a center of commerce and finance, as well as the busiest shipping port in the world. All this superimposed over the quaint British colonial past, and the combination is absolutely fascinating. Even though many languages and dialects are spoken here, English is the common language, which gives you a certain feeling of comfort and familiarity right from the very start.

But there is a lot more to Singapore. It is an incredibly well planned city with diverse architecture, lush landscaping and more picture opportunities than you can imagine. True to its reputation, it is also an impeccably clean, safe and well maintained city, where you can easily get around and enjoy all the things it has to offer.

As soon as you arrive from Hanoi, you'll be amazed at what I rate as the best airport in the world. From there, straight to the Intercontinental Hotel in the heart of the city, central to everything you could want - shopping, restaurants, the subway and only a few blocks to the waterfront.

Next morning, we will start with a tour to give you an excellent overview of the city and its history, while using all possible means of transportation, from boat to trishaws. Starting with the Raffles landing site, you will see the financial center, the river front, the Arab quarter, Little India and Chinatown. We will end our tour with a fabulous lunch at the historic Raffles Hotel. After a little rest back at the hotel, we'll head off to the night ZOO, which is a must-see.

The second day is all on your own to explore, shop, eat and relax, and so will be the following morning. On our last day, we'll take a ride up to the top of Mt. Faber, hop a cable car and take a ride to Sentosa Island (passing through the top floors of a high-rise on the way). Here you can explore the fort with a nice museum which gives an outstanding overview of Singapore's history, see the Underwater World, walk through the lush parks, or just hang out at the beach. Then before finally heading home, stop off for a fabulous dinner, to top off this adventure.

The extension trip is heavily subsidized by Singapore Air, which is why the cost is higher if you are providing your own overseas air. As with the core trips, words aren't sufficient to describe this city, so please visit our web site and look at some of the photographs from this wonderful destination.
